Our Supply Chains

We consider the risk of slavery or human trafficking within our supply chain to be low. Our supply chain include providers of professional services, IT services and equipment, office facilities services, recruitment and training, advertising and marketing, and business operations and infrastructure support.

Our Employees

Our recruitment processes are transparent and reviewed regularly. We communicate directly with candidates to discuss job opportunities and to confirm the details of any offer made. We have robust procedures in place for the vetting of new employees and ensure that we are able to confirm their identities and that they are paid directly into an appropriate, personal bank account. We have policies and procedures in place to ensure compliance with all human rights laws and employment laws and all staff are remunerated fairly. We are satisfied that our employees are not exploited in any way.

Our policies on slavery and human trafficking

We have a zero tolerance approach to modern slavery and human trafficking, and as such we are committed to ensuring that there is no modern slavery or human trafficking in our supply chains or in any part of our business. We are committed to acting ethically and with integrity in all our business relationships.

Actions taken or planned

Considering slavery and human trafficking risks are low to the business and our straightforward supply chains, our planned approach is one that is proportionate and risk based and will focus on:

- Key service provider on boarding – enhance checks and seek confirmation of their compliance with MSA.
- Due diligence – focusing on existing key service providers, assess and review their approach to combatting slavery and human trafficking.
- Training – develop staff training to include education on slavery and human Trafficking.
